

Carpenteria californica

Bush Anemone

Shrub

Sun to light shade

Infrequent water

Origin: California

Carpenteria is an evergreen California native shrub that grows six or more feet high and wide. The form is multi stem, upright, uneven and open. White poppy or anemone like flowers bloom in late spring and summer. Remove spent flowers as they are unattractive and persist on the plant. After flowering is also a good time to lightly prune it back. This will help promote a fuller appearance. No pruning is needed on young plants. Afternoon shade is best. A good companion for Oak trees.
